Hey, have you ever been to San Francisco?
Yeah, been there a couple of time	s. What's up?
I'm thinking about planning a trip there. Any recommendations?
You want the touristy crap or son path?	nething off the beaten
I'm up for a mix. I want to see the iconic stuff, but also get a feel for the city.
Cool. Start with the Golden Gate	Bridge.

Bradley Miller(21) Business Major at SFSU
Bio: Lives in a dorm and works for the school library.
Loves to eat at new places and attend food events.

Wants & Needs: An easy reliable way to find good places to eat in his area. Easy way to plan a trip with friends because he is planning a trip to LA over the summer.

Pain Points: Friends are indecisive on what place they want to eat. Hates that Yelp feels alienated and wants to interact with the community and make friends wherever he is.

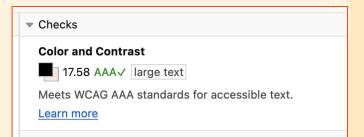

Benefits of our Application

- → Connecting with other like-minded travelers where you can easily find travel buddies who share the same interests as you
- Messaging other users by gaining valuable insights by reading and sharing authentic travel stories
- → Allows everyone to create friends in different locations and forge friendships that can lead to future travels and/or adventures
- → With local and national events it can help enhance the travel experience for everyone
- Community aspects allow everyone to discover the hidden gems or new places creating a better experience
- → Users get to step out of their comfort zones and share their journeys and also learn from others.

User Experience and Interface

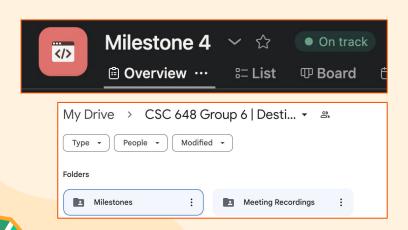

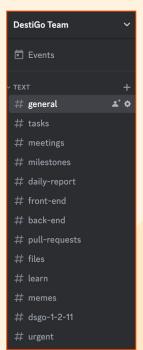

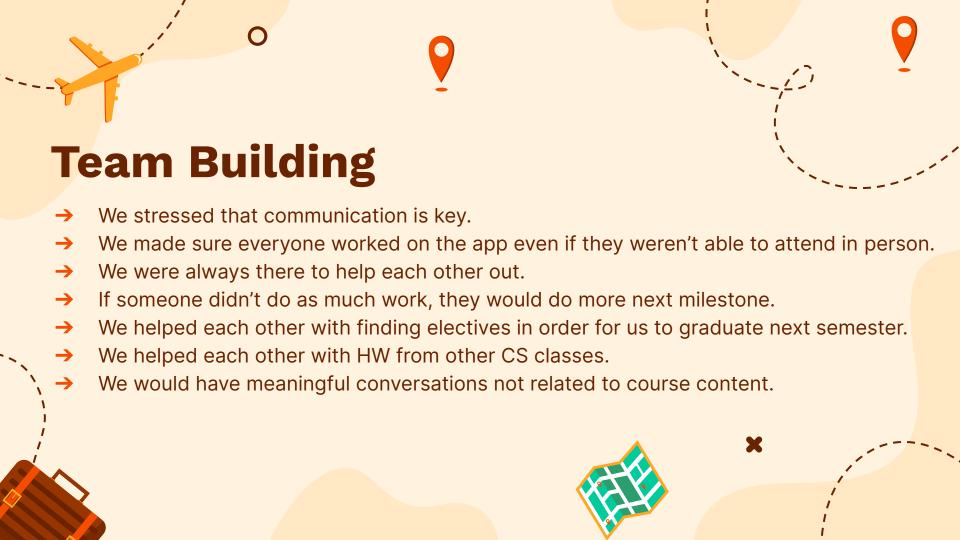

Task Management

- → To communicate we used Discord.
- → To manage our tasks we used Asana.
- → To arrange meetings we used LettuceMeet and Google Calendar Invites.
- → To meet virtually we used Zoom.
- → To be organized we used Google Drive.

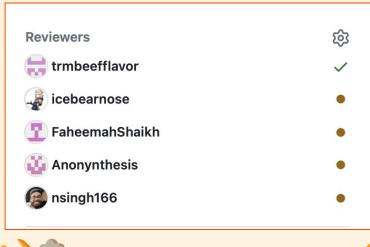

Source Code Management

- → Regular Code Reviews, Pull Requests to make sure our production branch is always working, and no buggy or untested code is pushed to production.
- → Branch protection & different branches for new features, updates and fixes.
- → 2 Approvals on every PR are required before merging any changes to the production branch.

Source Code Management

- → To track changes efficiently, we had a pull request checklist which needs to be filled while creating pull requests. This helped us track the changes and also ensure no untested code is being pushed to production.
- → We also used Vercel for Git to get a live preview of the changes through an open pull request, which helped us ensure the project compiles before merging it to production.
